Constable Generations 2026 marks the 250th anniversary of the birth of John Constable RA, inspiring exhibitions nationwide celebrating one of Britain's most beloved landscape painters. In 1816, Constable and his wife Maria Bicknell spent part of their honeymoon in Osmington, Dorset, establishing a lasting family connection with the county. Generations brings together works by John Constable's descendants: the late Richard Constable, his daughter Sasha Constable and her son Valya Constable, alongside selected pieces by other family members. The exhibition celebrates a remarkable artistic lineage, their Dorset connections and the enduring creativity of the Constable family across generations. Tuesday - Saturday, 10am - 4pm. Dorchester Arts, Dorchester, High East Street, Dorchester, Dorset DT1 1HF.

Until 15 August

Punk Bridport This exhibition of Adrian Boot's photographs explores the raw, unfiltered spirit of punk rock through a series of powerful images that capture the scene's energy, attitude, and urgency. The work focuses on punk in the UK and USA as both a visual and a cultural movement, highlighting its fast, confrontational nature and its uncompromising rejection of established social and cultural norms. 10am-4pm, Wed-Sat. Allsop Gallery, Bridport Arts Centre, 9 South St, Bridport DT6 3NR. Free (voluntary donation to Bridport Arts Centre).

Until 24 August

The Longest Yarn exhibition Following the success of the original The Longest Yarn 80-metre depiction of the D-Day landings, this new exhibition continues the project's mission of bringing history to life through large-scale, handcrafted textile art. Come and see this powerful 80-metre textile installation that explores the social history of the Second World War — learn how ordinary people coped, endured, and adapted during years of wartime hardship and change. The exhibition also features life-sized, hand-crafted "Army of Duty Calls" figures, honouring those who served both at home and on the front lines. 10am - 4pm. Nothe Fort Barrack Road, Weymouth, Dorset DT4 8UF.
